

pass over those gathered upon the aviation field.

The aeroplane had no sooner crashed to the ground than medical aid was summoned. Would-be rescuers ran to the side of the fallen aviator and with furious haste tore at the wreckage of the aeroplane which pinned him to earth. Moissant, attired in his leather suit and aviation helmet, lay unconscious and bleeding from cuts upon his face.

A physician who was in one of the automobiles which was accompanying Moissant, rushed to the side of the injured man. He passed his hand over Moissant's body, then shook his head.

"He is crushed nearly to a pulp," said the medical man.

Moissant's body was tenderly lifted into the automobile, which for the time being was transformed into an ambulance. The chauffeur put on all speed and the automobile dashed away toward this city.

Oies En Route.

While the powerful racing car bounced over the road at sixty miles an hour speed, a temporary resting place in the bottom of the car was constructed for the wounded man, and the doctors ministered to him.

However, despite the efforts of the doctor to revive the intrepid aviator and despite the furious pace set by the reckless chauffeur, Moissant died within a short time and before this city could be reached.

As soon as the doctor had announced Moissant dead the chauffeur slowed down. Those in the car went when they learned that the daring flyer had passed away.

An examination showed that some of Moissant's bones had been pushed through his skin by the terrific force of the fall, and the weight of his Bleriot monoplane. He was so badly mangled that nothing could have saved his life. His head, although protected by the leather helmet, was badly crushed.

When the automobile bearing the dead body of the fearless flyer arrived here new details of the tragedy of the clouds were brought with it.

It was the opinion of some that the major on the monoplane had gone wrong, which left Moissant at the mercy of the wind.

To some it appeared as though Moissant was attempting a slide to earth with a dead motor when the machine suddenly turned turtle.

Aviators Plan Perilous Flight in California

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 31.—An airship flight over land and water, more hazardous than that of crossing the English Channel, is being arranged today by officials of the aviation meet. It is between the aviation field and Catalina Island, the distance being about fifty miles.

James Radley, the English aviator, and Hubert Latham, the French flyer, probably will be contestants.

French Army Aviator Dead of His Injuries

VERSAILLES, France, Dec. 31.—Lieutenant Caumont, of the army aviation corps, is the latest victim of aviation.

He died last night from injuries received when the new monoplane he was testing yesterday fell from a height of sixty feet, fracturing both the arms and legs of the aviator. He had the likeliest chance of today, he would have been a member of the legion of honor, for General Brun, minister of war, nominated him for this distinction as soon as he heard of the accident.

MORE DELAY URGED FOR WAGON LIGHTS

Commissioners May Ignore Further Request of Business Men.

In behalf of a number of business men, John L. Newbold today presented to the Commissioners a request for a further respite from the order requiring the display of lights on all horse-drawn vehicles.

The Commissioners had decided to enforce the regulation beginning with tomorrow night. It went into effect December 18, but in compliance with the request of business men and horse owners, its enforcement was postponed until after the holidays, in view of the fact that many extra teams are employed in handling the Christmas trade. In the opinion of the Commissioners, traffic has now resumed its normal condition, and they say there is no need of a further extension.

Letters of protest and asking for additional time with which to comply with the ordinance were received today from the George W. Knott Express Company, B. B. Earnshaw & Co., M. Galt & Co., and the C. Thompson and the Hoge-McDowell companies.

The regulation requires the display on every private vehicle in the District of a white light visible for a distance of 200 feet from the front, side, and rear, between the hours of one-half hour after sunset and 1 a. m.

SECRETLY MARRIED COUPLE IN NEW YORK

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Herbert Martin on Honey-moon.

Following their surprising announcement that they were secretly married in July last, thus culminating a romance that began when the two were children, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hubert Martin, the former private secretary to Senator Overman, are in New York upon their honeymoon.

The couple, who surprised their friends by making the news of the marriage public Thursday, passed through Richmond and Washington, en route to the metropolis, and, in each city, were heartily congratulated by friends who had no inkling whatever that the two had been wed since July 21.

Mr. Martin accidentally met his fiancée, Miss Annie M. McGuire, of Smithfield, N. C., upon the street in Richmond. At the time Mr. Martin was en route West with the Senate third degree investigating committee, and Miss McGuire was visiting Richmond friends. Mr. Martin and Miss McGuire went to a ball game.

"Why not get married before I start West?" suggested the prospective bridegroom. Miss McGuire entered into the spirit of the romance, and the two were quietly made man and wife, each making the promise that not a word was to be said about the affair until this Christmas.

Just about the time the friends of the young couple were beginning to wonder when the ceremony would take place, Mr. Martin went at Smithfield and let everybody in on the secret.

The couple will be at home in Washington after the holidays, when Mr. Martin will resume his duties in connection with the Third Degree Committee work and as Senator Overman's secretary. Both Mr. and Mrs. Martin came of distinguished North Carolina families.

PARADE WITH BIBLES FOR CHICAGO GUESTS

Young Religious Workers Supply Hotels With 6,000 Volumes.

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 31.—Chicago has witnessed many unique processions in the course of her career, but it remained for the last day of 1910 to furnish a parade of a different kind.

Starting from the Central Y. M. C. A. building at an appointed hour this afternoon, 1,000 young men, each carrying half a dozen Bibles, marched in procession through the downtown streets and stopped at the leading hotels. They were from churches and other religious organizations and carried 6,000 Bibles, given free to the hotels by the association of Gideons, or Christian traveling men, of the United States. The Bibles were placed in the hotel bedrooms, the purpose of the project being to encourage Bible reading.

Thirty Thousand Men To Get Shorter Hours

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—With the advent of the new year the men employed in the lithographing trades throughout the country will begin work under an eight-hour schedule. This is in accordance with a decision reached last May by the National Association of Employing Lithographers. Between 20,000 and 30,000 workmen in all parts of the country will be affected. Heretofore the men have worked nine hours a day.

Simultaneous with the establishment of the shorter workday there will be inaugurated a plan providing for sick, accident, and life insurance without cost to the employees.

Cleveland Police Chief Will Censor Salome

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Dec. 31.—"Salome at least is going to have as much chance as a criminal," said Chief Kohler in speaking of the coming of Mary Garden. Kohler is to be the censor. As he talked a pile of newspapers from his desk, in which were favorable criticisms about "Salome," lay at hand.

"You can say for me," continued the chief, "Miss Garden cannot be judged until she has been seen and consequently at least one performance of 'Salome' will be played here."

Grief for Father Kills Girl Nine Years Old

CHATHAM, N. J., Dec. 31.—Died of grief is the unusual verdict on the death today of nine-year-old Inez C. Hara.

The death return will read heart disease, but the doctors say grief over the death of her father, who was buried Sunday, weakened her heart and caused death. The girl collapsed during the burial of her father.

Physician Fears Leprosy Less Than Tuberculosis

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—Physicians who examined the nine lepers exhibited at the symposium upon leprosy held at the Academy of Medicine, were divided in their opinions concerning the contagiousness of the malady. One doctor said he would rather sleep in a closed room with ten lepers than with one tuberculosis patient, and that leprosy was neither contagious nor infectious, but others disagreed with him in this respect.

The general opinion was that in tropical countries leprosy is an ever source of danger, but that in temperate America the danger of contagion is much more remote.

Magistrates Warned.

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—The magistrates throughout this city received a warning today regarding the admitting of alleged burglars to inadequate bail. The case against Magistrate Barlow for this offense was dismissed yesterday with a warning to be more careful in the future.

WILL FILE CHARGES AGAINST POLICEMAN

Clarence W. Nohe, Arrested by Patrolman Kliendienst, Wants Investigation.

Trouble is breaking fast and hard for Patrolman S. B. Kliendienst, of the Fourth police precinct.

Following an investigation by officials of the Police Department of the alleged unwarranted arrest of Camille Lombardy by Kliendienst last Saturday night, for disorderly conduct, after his acquittal in the Police Court, Clarence W. Nohe, an employee of the money order division of the City postoffice, announced today that he will file formal charges against the policeman with the police trial board for unnecessarily placing him under arrest Friday night. Mr. Nohe was also acquitted of the charge of disorderly conduct.

Camille Lombardy, who is a machinist at the Navy Yard, was arrested by Kliendienst in front of a 10-cent store Saturday night. He was in company with his brother, Frank Lombardy, of 514 Eleventh street southeast, who was placed under arrest by Police Officer Murray. The charge of disorderly conduct against them was dismissed.

Through a mistake in the entering of names at headquarters and the fact that Kliendienst was so busy making cases that were later thrown out of court, it was erroneously stated that Lombardy was arrested in front of a department store.

The Lombardy brothers have not decided whether they will prefer charges against the policeman, but Major Sylvester has ordered an investigation of the whole affair, and it is expected that a report will be submitted to him within a few days.

BATHTUB OFFICIALS PLEAD FOR LENIENCY

Want Fines Imposed Instead of Jail Sentences for Violators.

Not yet satisfied that the Department of Justice is determined to put officials of the Bathtub trust in jail, counsel for the Standard Sanitary Manufacturing Company today decided to remain in Washington until next week in an effort to persuade Attorney General Wickersham to compromise the case against the officials of that company.

The Attorney General had announced that the prosecuting officials will ask the court to impose a jail sentence. His determination was not shaken yesterday, and he made this fact plain.

The trust lawyers will make further efforts to have the department agree to heavy fines as a settlement.

GRAND JURY FINDS FIVE INDICTMENTS

Concludes Work for Present Term and Is Dismissed by Court.

Today being the last day of the present term of court, the grand jury, which has been in session for the past three months, was called into court and discharged, after entering five indictments against the following defendants:

George W. Taylor, embezzlement (two counts); William O. Blagburne, assault with a dangerous weapon; Walter Brooks, forgery; Joseph Aloany, larceny; and Robert Woodward, alias Robert Graham, alias John Henry Roper, false pretenses.

According to the finding of the grand jury, Woodward, who is a resident of the State of New York, by means of a letter purporting to come from the Internal Revenue Bureau of the Treasury Department, convicted Aaron P. Ordway that a certain patent medicine which Ordway was preparing, came under the head of a beverage, and that it was therefore subject to a tax of $5,000 by the laws of the Internal Revenue Bureau.

Accordingly, on August 10, 1910, the indictment reads, Woodward received $5,000 from Ordway, telling him that he had retained a lawyer to conduct the legal end of the affair, and that he had further communicated with the Treasury Department concerning the payment of the revenue tax.

CAPITAL CAPTURES SCIENCE CONVENTION

Chairman Hunt, of Chamber of Commerce Committee, Notified by Wire.

The conventions committee of the Chamber of Commerce has captured another convention for next year. The American Society for Advancement of Science, which is now holding its annual meeting at Minneapolis, has advised Granville Hunt, chairman of the committee, that it had accepted the invitation to meet at the Capital next year.

The information came in a telegram received by Mr. Hunt from L. O. Howard, Chief of the Bureau of Entomology, Department of Agriculture, last night. Mr. Howard was a delegate to the convention from Washington.

The convention will hold its meeting next year between Christmas and New Year, and will be attended by about 500 delegates from the universities and other institutions of learning throughout the United States.

Mr. Hunt is today making arrangements for the reception and luncheon to be given to delegates to the convention January 11, of the National Tariff Commission Association, at the Chamber of Commerce. Up to his rooming at the hotel, the executive committee of the Chamber, made an appropriation for this purpose yesterday.

WIRE THEFT SHOCKS MAN IN MANHOLE

Fielding Lewis, Colored, in Another Hole After Police Court Trial.

Fielding Lewis, colored, is in a bigger hole today than yesterday, when he was arrested after five feet of cable had been taken from a manhole of the Potomac Electric Power Company.

He was fined $20 in Police Court this morning. He declared he didn't steal the wire, but was holding it for another man. It was while engaged in the dangerous practice of being an innocent bystander that he was arrested.

He told the court he had worked for the company until about a week ago, when work became slack and he was laid off. When he added that he had been in the conduit department the court told him he ought to know the danger of handling electric wires, but he couldn't see the joke.
